MIT STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

The way that I observe it, the art of engineering involves the application of scientific theories to design. The basic principles that are being applied to structures and products are of utmost importance. By studying engineering, I am also hoping to learn the way in which engineers use the principles as they are being integrated into designs. One design that proves inspiring to me is the Falkirk wheel boat lift because it presents the way in which solutions to various engineering problems may be iconic and imaginative.

Engineering will also enable me to see how certain principles are being applied to design. This was basically emphasized at a lecture that I have attended discussing the mechanics used in roller coasters. I became really fascinated in learning regarding some design constraints which were all applied to balance safety and safety. For instance, if the bend is very tight, extra g-force may result to the participants blocking it.

I have begun to enhance my personal knowledge by reading different publications in the field of engineering. I thoroughly enjoyed further learning on the basic theory that surrounds the wings that create lift, thus creating pressure difference. I am now looking forward towards studying this particular area in extreme detail. From these literatures, I have learned that in the viewpoint of an engineer, each design may be improved on. At the same time, it is also this potential to progress and improve things through engineering that really appeals to me.

Personally, I have also participated in several activities that allowed me to work on by leadership, teamwork, as well as time management. I believe that in the field of engineering, a really strong teamwork is vital to success. I also love sports, as I play cricket as a member of our school team, and such experience taught me to deal with pressure with grace.
